For Your Child’s Protection

Unattended children can be at risk in public places. The University Library is a public place.

The University Library requires that children 12 and under be supervised by a parent or adult caregiver who remains in the same room as the child throughout their visit.

Library employees are not responsible for, or able to monitor, unattended children.

For the safety and well-being of all children, University of Saskatchewan Protective Services/Safety Resources personnel will be called when an unaccompanied child is discovered to be in the Library.

Please do not leave your child alone in the Library.

Help us ensure your child’s visit to the Library is a safe and happy experience.
